SITUATION IN HAWAII

The Radical Party Gaining in Strength and Importance.

Representation on the Advisory Committee Demanded by the American League and Annexation Club.

TALK WITH MR. THURSTON

Says the Government Is United and the Royalists Hopeless.

Report that the Ex-Queen Has Abandoned Her Claim and Will Ask Uncle Sam to Pay Big Damages.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—The steamers City of Peking and Australia arrived here to-day from Honolulu. The Peking, which reached port at 11 a. m., brought a copyright letter from the Associated Press correspondent dated Jan. 5. After noting events already published, the letter says:

Perhaps next in importance to the de-mand and reply which have passed between the provisional government and the United States government, is the new political force represented by the American League and the executive committee of the annexation club. The growing strength of the radical party, which is now able to claim at least two-thirds of the American vote in Hawaii is directly toward a larger representation in government than was secured by it when the provisional authority was first established. It having been announced that Vice President Hatch would resign from the advisory council to accept the ministry of foreign affairs. A movement at once began to put Walter G. Smith, radical leader of the American movements in Hawaii, into the vacancy. Resolutions to that end were passed by both the American League and the executive committee ory council, however, some opposition was shown. Heretofore this body has been selfelecting and self-perpetuating and has quietly refused the demands made by the radical element. The radicals assert that the council has been conservative to a hegree that endangers the future of popular government in Hawaii, and thus expect their present movement to be a protest against the further encroachments of corporations upon the popular government here. The position taken by the conservative element has served to arouse the radical party, and it is not unlikely that unless the backers of Mr. Smith are placated, serious political difference will arise between the present government and the Americans who are the support of the present movement for closer commercial rela-

It is believed that the present differences may lead to a new distribution of places in the legislative branch of the government at the hands of the men who created the present government. The present differences have taken the form of a test of strength between the new political forces which have arisen in Hawaii since the demand of Minister Willis for the provisional government to step down and out. As put by the radicals, it seems to be a question whether the corporations representing the sugar plantations shall rule the country or whether the government shall be carried out by a majority of the loyal citizens of Hawaii. No real crisis has as yet arisen, and should such arise it will probably be averted by a vacancy being created in the councils which will be filled by a popular representative of the people.

BLOUNT'S WITNESSES. In an interview held with Minister Thursthe testimony of about sixty royalists and only twenty supporters of the provisional of thirteen members of the committee of safety; two out of three speakers at the great mass meetings; out of the twentythree line and staff officers engaged in the revolution; none of the Jones-Wilcox Cabinet, in office two months preceding the downfall of the monarchy. But," added Mr. Thurston, in a significant manner, "he took all the testimony of the members of the Coburn Cabinet at great length, who were in office but three days."

It is further learned from a prominent royalist, who is believed to be reliable, that after United States Minister Willis had made his demand on the provisional government he heard that the Queen intended to except several individuals from her guarantee of amnesty. It is reported that, thereupon, the American minister spent a portion of the evening in question at Washington Place, arguing with the ex-Queen and urging her to change her opinion. It is said that she refused to do this, and that she excepted from amnesty President Dole; W. O. Smith, Attorney-general, Chief Justice Judd and several others. The public journalists have been making it hot for Minister Willis. George Manson, of the Star, has filed an affidavit in which he virtually declares the United States minister to have falsified an interview. Dr.

Tronsseau has also been called to account for his statements in Blount's report, and has repeatedly apologized. The copyrighted letter received by the steamer Australia is dated Jan. 6, one day later than the above. It says that Minister Thurston, who left on the Australia, carries very full instructions on the Hawaiian question, and these are supplemented by a dozen or more affidavits which, it is said, will clear up many points in Blount's report, and, it is claimed, set the Hawailan people in a proplight before the people of the United States. The American League held a prolonged meeting on the night of Jan. 5, at which it was determined to force the appointment of Walter G. Smith, of the Star, to a position in the aidvisory council, and that should the conservative element attempt to place either a missionary or a representative of the plantation interests in the position they would immediately announce their deterination to cease their support of the provisional governent. From all that can be learned ft is evident that the aggressive element of the country is in the forefront of the present political movement, and that Americanism will be hereafter used as a test of trustworthiness in public affairs. There is little doubt that this present government is at last feeling the force of the popular demand for representation which foreigners never had under the monarchy, and which they could not secure under the restoration of missionary rule. The claim is now boldly set up by the foreigners representing the mechanical and laboring elements of Hawaii, exclusive of plantations, and their demand is ebing backed by both popular appeals and secret organizations. The latest of these societies is one composed of German residents, almost every member of which belongs to the American League. In addition to the regular correspondence, the Australia brought duplicate copies of the Associated Press letter, which arrived here on the revenue cutter Corwin, Jan. 5, and which, owing to the refusal of Captain Munger to permit anyone to communicate with the Corwin, are probably still aboard the Corwin. The correspondent, writing under date of Dec. 14. an hour or two after the news of Minister Willis's demands upon the provisional government had become known in Honolulu. says: "The town is wild with excitement. All the provisional troops have been ordered to be on the alert and sharpshooters are already coming into the city. Both the government and the American citizens believe the American minister is playing a game of bluff, and that he will back down. Cleveland's policy will have to meet Americans residing here in battle array, each man armed to the teeth." THE CORWIN SHOWS HERSELF.

As soon as the Peking steamed into the harbor this morning, the cutter Corwin, which has been in hiding on the San Quentin mud flats, in a remote corner of the bay, for eight days past, immediately weighed anchor and moved to an accessible point, opposite the city front, where she assumed a more sociable demeanor than at any time since her arrival. The Peking brought no passenger of special prominence from Honobulu, but the Australia had delegations aboard representing both the provisional government and the ex-Queen. Among them were E. C. MacFarlane, A. P. Peterson and Samuel Parker, of the Queen's advisers, and Minister L. A. Thurston and F. M. Hatch, the latter being vice president of the advisory council of the Mr. Thurston declared that everything was quiet when he left the islands. A reporter said to him that a statement was Regarding my instructions and future actions, I am not at liberty to talk. I believe that the Queen is not popular with the royalists in the islands. his financial affairs, which are badly involved, and Peterson is here as Parker's

GREENFIELD, Ind., Jan. 13 .- The jury failed to agree in the case against William Reed, brought here on a change of venue from Marion county and charged with the murder of Samuel Barker, at Maennerchor Hall, at Indianapolis, last October. It has been on trial here all week. The State was represented by Prosecuting Attorney E. W. Felt and Marsh and Cook, all of whom made strong and vigorous speeches in the argument. The defense was represented by ex-Lieutenant Governor Thomas Hanna and ex-Supreme Judge R. W. McBride, of Indianapolis, and Offutt and Bach, of this city. Only the two former made speeches, but they were quite effective. The case was given to the jury at noon yesterday, and they wrestled with it for twenty-four hours and then brought in a verdict of disagreement. Four stood for acquittal and eight for conviction. This, of course, will necessitate another trial. Reed, in the meantime, will remain incarcerated in the jail here, as he is charged with murder in the first degree and bail will not be accepted.

The Doctor stopped long enough to slip on his trousers just the same, and when he opened the door the strange man and woman rushed in. The woman grabbed the Doctor by the arm, pinched it, got him by the collar and almost screamed, "Give me

The Doctor demurred, stating that he was not in the habit of giving morphine to everybody who asked for it. "O," said the woman, "I am a morphine flend. I must have it. Do be quick!" While this conversation had been going on the woman had been alternately begging the doctor, pinching him, almost caressing him, and running to her husband, whom she would kiss passionately. Big Suit at Kokomo Against the Wabash Railroad.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. KOKOMO, Ind., Jan. 13.-The biggest damage suit ever filed in the courts here will come up for trial Monday. It is an action in which the Wabash railway is defendant, brought by twenty-four corporations, the Logansport Manufacturing Company and twenty-three insurance companies. A year ago the factory owned by the Logansport corporation was destroyed by fire and according to the company it caught fire from a spark from a passing engine on the Wabash road. The factory people then sued the road, demanding damages in the sum of $75,000, backed by the insurance companies holding risks on the plant. The insurance companies interested are: Pennsylvania, the Reading, the Pacific, the Milwaukee Mechanics, Traders of Liverpool, L. & G., Connecticut, Concordia, Phoenix of Brooklyn, the Citizens' of Evansville, the Merchants', the Orient, Fire Association of Philadelphia, North British and Mercancantile, the Sun Insurance Office of Evansville, Springfield Fire and Marine, National, Tutonia, Westchester, Western Assurance, Pennsylvania of Philadelphia, North America of Buffalo, German American of Philadel-

The complaint states that plaintiffs served notice on the former to vacate the house in which they were living. Although the rent was paid up to date, the Goldberg family prepared to comply with the request, and while in the act of moving, the defendants appeared and threw them out, bag and baggage. Ascending the stairway to the landing at the second tier of cells, he made the rope fast to the railing and adjusting the noose, jumped off. The fall was ten or twelve feet. The "rope" checked his fall and severely choked him, but proved too weak to hold him, and he fell in an unconscious heap on the iron floor of the corridor. The prisoners removed the noose and gave the alarm. A physician was soon present and after working with the wretch for about half an hour succeeded in bringing nim round. Gillam expresses regret that he did not succeed and says that he will never serve his time. There was talk of a lynching and the sheriff will remove his prisoner at once to Michigan City.

and Farra in this city.

Probably no American vegetable product is appreciated less than the commonest and most useful of all, namely, our maize or indian corn, which Dr. John W. Harshberger, of the University of Pennsylvania, has made his especial study for the past three years. His results have just appeared in an attractive volume which forms the seeond number of the contributions from the botanical laboratory of the university. Its botanical side is not more valuable than its study of the history of the plant and its economic importance. Dr. Hasrhberger has carefully exnausted the field of philology, archaeology and history in his investigation into the origin of the plant, which has hitherto been so uncertain. His conclusion, based upon a series of well-presented convergences, is that the plant originated in Central Mexico, between the twenty-second parallel and the river Coatzocoalcos, and was first cultivated by the Havas. From them it was spread southward along the entire west coast of South America, and northward over the great territory where it is now found. Light was thrown on this research by botany and meteorology, a very primitive form of maize having been found in 1890 in Mexico, which has afforded many points in the evolutionary history of the plant. Probably no part of the work would attract more attention from the average reader than the table of the principal products of the maize plant, ranging from whisky to soap, and from paper to baskets. Improved machinery is making it possible to use every part of the plant, and its utility, as exhibited by Dr. Harshberger, is quite surprising.

Is it not time for the magazines to let up in the matter of dialect literature Surely we now have all the various forms of bad spelling and pronunciation to be found in this country; and no one of them is so inviting and charming that other people enjoy it and demand a further supply of it. The use of reproducing dialect in a story is to make it more lifelike, we suppose. But when the lingo used becomes as difficult to read as a foreign language, the vividness is a minus quantity; and, in general, dialect defeats its end by lansing into obscurity. Good spelling is good enough, even for magazines, and spelling reform cannot be promoted by any amount of bad enunciation exactly copied, and we cannot Police Superintendent Powell conduct raid on a gambling house at 11 o'clock night. He was assisted by Captains Can bell and Quigley and several sergeants and patrolmen. The officers visited the resor of Gus Rahke, at No. 168 East Washington street, and arrested besides the proprietor a dozen young men and half as many women of unsavory character. A number of the men were found in the basement of the saloon enjoying a game that strangely resembled poker. Rahke asserts that his cus tomers were playing seven-up and had introduced a stack of chips as a new and original way of counting points. The women with two or three male escorts of more ury of a handsomly furnished wine roon in the rear. The prisoners were release bond being furnished by the propriet of the place. Three of the women were young in years, and were detained until their parents could be summoned to take them home. Rahke declares that he has violated none of the city laws, and will fight the charge against him of keeping a gambling house.
